Every individual is unique and is born with certain inherent potential or talent. This talent helps them to learn things easily and quickly. Psychologists call this potential as Aptitude.

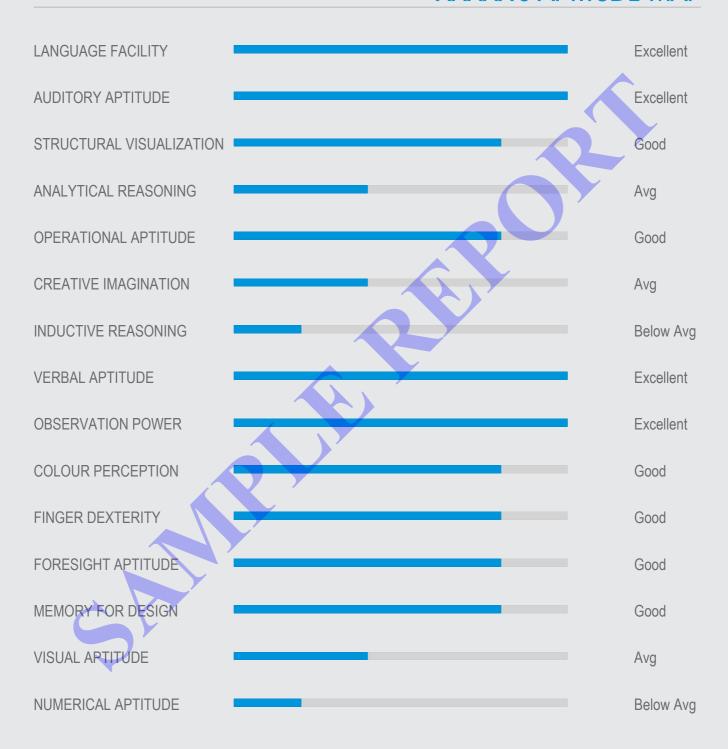

Aptitude gets reflected in an individual, essentially as a result of early exposure during childhood and growing up years.

Each one us do several task or study different subjects or interact with different people or work in different environment. While doing so we are utilizing our aptitude/s to perform or understand these. Our success is dependent on the strength in certain aptitudes that we are able use.

We at MapMyTalent have assessed fifteen different Aptitudes during your MyTalent Senior Assessment. In this report you will find your aptitude scores, which are not absolute, but are relative scores. This means that your scores have been statistically compared with the People of your age group and then used for further analysis. You will find them depicted as Excellent, High, Above Average, Average or Below Average. Further, we have provided the descriptions of all those Aptitudes, where you have scored Excellent or High.

It is not important to have a High Score in all the Aptitudes but important to have the right combination of Aptitudes, which would fit with ones' career.

XXXXX'S APTITUDE MAP

Language Facility

- Physicians and medical professionals score high as they have to notice minute changes in the condition of the patient or irregularities in CT scans or x-rays as an important part of their jobs.

This Aptitude comes in handy in quite a lot of professions, like the field of forensics and house-keeping. In our day to day life, having this aptitude helps us to notice important details such as a ceiling crack at your house or even unimportant, like a colleagues new haircut.

Foresight Aptitude

Your Assessment Score reveals that you have high "Foresight Aptitude". This can be further elaborated as:

- People with this Aptitude have the capability of thinking beyond the average people. This aptitude helps the individual to keep the mind focus on a distant goal.
- These people enjoy the work which allows one to think of different paths to reach success prior to actually getting it. They can also talk about the hindsight with clarity.
- With this Aptitude, if the people feel that their work is advancing in the direction of their vision, then they tend to feel more engaged and satisfied. Despite setbacks and discouragement they will be able to find ways to continue the task that they have envisioned.
- They feel purposeful when they are striving for that goal and once they get it, they might feel aimless.

It is important for people with "Foresight Aptitude" to remember that formulating their vision is in itself a process and may change direction or focus as one gains knowledge and experience.

Among the many occupations and professions that demand this Aptitude, the prominent ones are market research analyst, entrepreneur, sales forecaster, political scientist, diplomat, and politician.

After an in-depth analysis of your inherent strengths, we recommend the following three career choices for you.

- 1. CORPORATE TRAINER
- 2. COPYWRITING / INSTRUCTIONAL DESIGNER
- 3. EDUCATION / PUBLICATION ENTREPRENUER

Hi,

After having gone through your Assessment Scores and your Interest profile, we feel that it will best for you to utilize your Verbal, language and Observation Aptitude in your work. All these three are best utilized in the field of Corporate Training and more particularly in the "Training Delivery" Not necessarily in "training design". To add on to your qualification for a career in the above mentioned field, it will be good to acquire certification / diploma in NLP / Behavioural / Skill training from a reputed institute.

All The VERY BEST!
